ROADBLOCKS

Travizon's legacy system was stagnant and inflexible so the firm found it more and more difficult to manage its software as the number of data fields grew. The lack of flexibility in its back office was creating barriers to developing new innovative products.

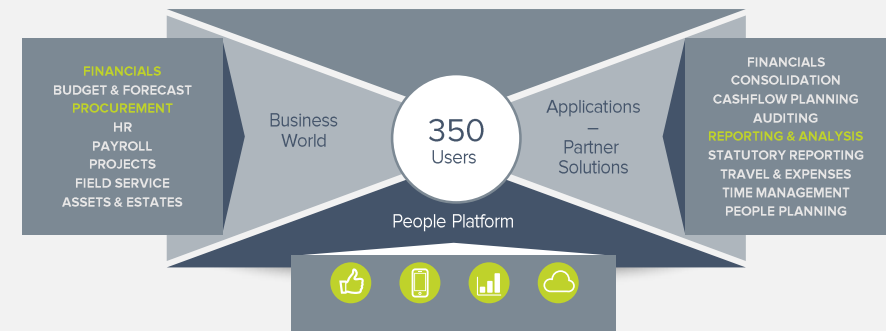

RISKS

As the economy and competitive pressures squeeze the industry, the imperative to stay technologically current is undeniable. Firms that don't keep up can't re-invest in their own infrastructure and will ultimately lose customers to those who do.

How did Unit4 help?

With Unit4 Business World Travizon was able to redefine revenue recognition and break it out so that income really did match expenses. Accurate knowledge on profitability and productivity - where its good and where its not - makes a huge impact on business.

What did we achieve?

Monetary savings

$250,000 cost savings per year due to Unit4 Business World and Sabre® Central Command™.

Improved operations

Being able to integrate data on demand and as required, combined with the ease of running reports, means Travizon has virtual real-time visibility of where its travellers are.

Efficiency and governance

With Unit4 Business World Travizon can completely map out what they need. They can craft their accounting system to mirror the front-office workflow and backend reporting.
