A message from Mike Ettling Chief Executive Officer

Our vision is to empower businesses and people to focus on what really matters – and how we do that counts. We aren't just talking about end results; we are talking about our journey. The way we conduct ourselves as a business and as people. Doing the right thing – for our communities, our customers, our colleagues, and Unit4.

We have a clear idea of our culture and values, and we all play a part in keeping us on track. We prioritize people, both our colleagues and our customers, along with equity and inclusion, balance and wellbeing, empowerment and autonomy. Our values – people first, choose curiosity, make an impact, and be genuine – act as guiding principles we should all follow. Because how we act matters, it defines who we are and how we are perceived.

Our Code of Ethics and Business Conduct (the Code) further layouts out our expectations, both of the business and of our people. It establishes the internal and external conduct promised and expected. It applies to everyone, even if not every situation applies directly to your role, and we must all take time to understand it.

Protecting who we are at Unit4 requires all our people. We must all adhere to the Code, we must remain vigilant, ask questions, and speak up.

Our people are Unit4's greatest asset, I know we can count on you.

“Protecting who we are at Unit4 requires all our people.”

A message from Michelle Eisenberg General Counsel

At Unit4, we are on a mission to develop innovative technology that will give people the means to focus on what matters to them and their business. People are at the heart of our organization, and as hard as we work to make an impact, we must never compromise on our values and ethics. Our Code is more than a set of rules; it establishes our tone of ethics and compliance and serves as a guiding post. Please take the time to read and understand it, as we expect everyone to do the right thing and always maintain the highest level of integrity.

The Code will not cover every situation. If you are unsure, there are many resources available to you at Unit4, including the People Experience and Legal teams, who are there to support and answer your questions. There are also safe and secure routes to report a concern. We do not tolerate retaliation of any kind against those who raise concerns. We encourage you to be on the lookout for compliance risks and thank you for speaking up.

“As hard as we work to make an impact, we must never compromise on our values and ethics.”

Our Values

The four values that unite Unit4:

- People first – We put people first and everything else follows. This value represents our true, core people focus internally and externally.
- Choose curiosity, embrace challenges – We are an innovative company driven by curiosity to always do better. We love taking on challenges and finding solutions.
- Make an impact, be proud – We all go to work wanting to make an impact, regardless of what we do, this is what connects us. And we should be proud of all the great things we accomplish.
- Be true to yourself – We are an inclusive company, encouraging people to be genuine. We see value in diversity and staying true to ourselves.

Our core values are the framework for our business and are reflected in the principles set out in this Code.

Core Principles

Honest and Ethical Business Conduct

Being an ethical company is not only core to our values, it is also crucial to our continued success. Unit4's policy is to comply with all applicable laws and regulations of the countries in which we operate and to conduct our business activities in an honest, ethical, and responsible manner. We value fairness, integrity and respecting each other. Together, we have a responsibility to understand - and follow - legal and internal policy requirements that apply to each of our job roles.

Appreciating Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

With 'be genuine' as one of our values, we place great emphasis on diversity. Through our Diversity4U program. We help our employees to become more aware of bias and further grow our inclusive culture. We also celebrate our differences and the value that a diverse workforce can bring by recognizing those who live and breathe our values every quarter. As a company which conducts business across the globe, we each need to recognize that conduct that is socially and professionally acceptable in one country or region may be viewed differently in another.

Relationship with Stakeholders

It is a core responsibility of Unit4 and its people to add value – we pursue innovation, operate with sound business practices, and contribute to developing a sustainable society. We all consider the impact of our business activities in the interest of our stakeholders, customers, employees, and business partners.

We also comply with all applicable anti-slavery and human trafficking laws, regulations, and codes from time to time in force and do not engage or employ children.

Unit4 is committed to ensuring that there are no human rights violations, modern slavery or child labour taking place in any part of our business.

The range and level of benefits offered to Staff are designed to be the best fit for the relevant market and country conditions.

It also and reinforces our ability to build technology that works for all of our customers.

Unit4's DE&I commitment highlights our approach throughout the whole employee experience with three focus areas, detailing key outcomes and targets that we all contribute to:

At Unit4, our commitment to the well-being of our Staff, visitors, and the surrounding environment is paramount. We comply with all applicable health and safety laws where we operate and recognize the importance of maintaining a safe, healthy, and sanitary workplace to ensure the highest standards of productivity and morale.

This commitment extends to our remote Staff, recognizing that their well-being is essential to the overall success and productivity of our organization. As hybrid working becomes an integral part of our operational structure, we are dedicated to ensuring that our Staff experience a safe and healthy work environment, regardless of their physical location. Our primary objectives are to prevent accidents, injuries, and illnesses, and to create a safe and healthy working environment.

Freedom of Association and Collective Bargaining

Unit4 recognizes and respects the freedom of Staff to choose whether to establish or to associate with any organization. Unit4 respects, within the framework of local law, regulations and prevailing labour relations and employment practices, the right of its Staff to be represented by labour or trade unions.

2. Ethical Personal Conduct

2.1. Personal conduct and Integrity

Our Staff represents Unit4 and, in turn, our reputation. Accordingly, we expect you to conduct yourself with integrity and in an ethical manner in all business settings, including when attending events (as a sponsor, partner or employee) or offering or accepting business hospitality or gifts.

Staff should never offer or accept any gifts or hospitality except if it complies with all of the following:

- it is not in cash or cash equivalent and not of excessive value;
- it is consistent with customary business practices;
- it cannot be construed as bribery or corruption; and
- it does not violate local law or regulation.

2. 2. Political Activity

Unit4's resources are not permitted to be used for the pursuit of your personal political activity and no political endorsement can be made on behalf of Unit4 without prior approval. Additionally, you must ensure that your political views and activity cannot be construed as Unit4's endorsement. Your political views are your own and not Unit4's.

Any political endorsement or contribution on behalf of Unit4 must comply with applicable laws, be previously approved by the Board of Directors and the Legal Department and be properly recorded.

2. 3. Corporate Opportunities and Delegation of Authority

Our Staff is expected to promote the interests of Unit4. Accordingly, any business opportunities that arise by virtue of your position at Unit4, are to be used solely to pursue and achieve Unit4's goals and not for personal benefit. You may not compete with Unit4 directly or indirectly.

You must also act strictly within the scope of the authority given to you by Unit4. Only certain individuals have the authority to bind, undertake obligations, commit resources or speak on behalf of Unit4.

2. 4. Conflicts of interest

A "conflict of interest" exists when a person's private interests interfere or conflict in any way with the interests of Unit4.

You must avoid situations that present potential conflicts of interest, either real or perceived, and should not engage in activities that would make it difficult or appear to make it difficult for you to perform your work objectively and effectively. In no way should you personally profit from transactions based on your relationship with Unit4 if it harms Unit4, or if your personal gain is achieved at Unit4's loss.

Examples of when a conflict of interest may arise include, but are not limited to:

Business Relationships. Any business relationship that you enter into outside your work at Unit4 requires your good faith judgment and common sense. While you are an employee of Unit4, you are prohibited from accepting simultaneous employment with or otherwise working for any person or entity with which Unit4 has a business relationship, without the prior written consent of Unit4's Global Leadership Team. You are not allowed to work for a competitor in any capacity.

Full-time employees of Unit4 are expected to devote substantially all of their business time and attention to their employment with Unit4.

Outside Directorships and Advisory Boards. Before agreeing to serve as a member of the board of directors or advisory board of another entity, it is important for you to consider the potential conflicts of interest that could result. No employee or director of Unit4 should ever serve as a director or member of the advisory board for a company that directly competes with Unit4. You are required to obtain prior written approval the Chief People Officer prior to serving on the board of directors or advisory board of any entity with which Unit4 has a business relationship.

Personal Investments. If you are considering investing in an entity with which Unit4 has a business or competitive relationship, you should take great care to ensure that these investments do not compromise or appear to compromise your responsibilities to Unit4. Many factors should be considered in determining whether a conflict exists, including the size and nature of the investment, your ability to influence decisions of Unit4 or of the other company, your access to confidential information of Unit4 or of the other company, and the nature of the relationship between Unit4 and the other company. By way of example: when you hold (directly or indirectly) shares in such company, and you are engaged in business negotiations on behalf of Unit4 with such company and you (directly or indirectly) may be at risk of making conflicted decisions in the negotiation that are not in Unit4's best interests. If you are unsure, please contact the Legal Department.

Related Persons. As a general rule, you should avoid conducting Unit4 business with a Related Person without obtaining prior written approval from the Unit4 Legal Department. Related Persons means a spouse, parent, sibling, grandparent, child, grandchild, relative by marriage, or same or opposite sex domestic partner, any other family member that is financially dependent on you, and any company, partnership or other entity owned and controlled by any such relative.

Transactions that will lead to a conflict of interest are prohibited, except in very narrow circumstances where the Chief Executive Officer, the Board and General Counsel has given informed written consent to the transaction.

Whether a conflict of interest exists may not always be clear-cut, so if you have a question, you should consult with higher levels of management. If you become aware of a conflict or potential conflict, you should bring it to the attention of a manager or other appropriate team member.

2.5. Social Media Guidelines

Unit4 recognises that the internet provides unique opportunities to participate in interactive discussions and share information on particular topics using a wide variety of social media. We encourage our Staff to use social media in a personal capacity and embrace the use of social media as a tool expand Unit4's business presence. other countries where we do business. Violations of such laws and regulations may result in the imposition of significant civil penalties, criminal fines and imprisonment, suspension of export privileges, and harm to Unit4's reputation.

In order to comply with such laws and regulations, any third parties with whom Unit4 does or wants to enter into a business transaction (including customers, suppliers, partners and contractors) must be screened against all applicable restricted party lists. Where applicable, Unit4 will train Staff members on any applicable laws.
